

MARY DOLAHER

Mary Dolaher, CEO, oversees IDG World Expo's suite of events, spearheading the new video game show "Entertainment for All™ Expo" (E for All™) and industry-leading brands such as Macworld, LinuxWorld, GreenXchange, and more. Additionally, Dolaher facilitates new business development, with particular focus on creating dynamic communities around each show. Before joining IDG World Expo, Dolaher was Senior Vice President at the Entertainment Software Association (ESA), where she directed the video game industry's annual Electronic Entertainment Expo (E3). Prior to her 12 years at E3, Dolaher was Director of Corporate Communications at IDG.

PAUL KENT

Paul Kent, General Manager, Macworld, is a 25 year veteran of the technology industry. Having started his career as a self-taught programmer, he started his own consulting firm in 1984. His company, Mactivity, Inc., went on to host the well regarded Mactivity series of technical conferences and a career in event management was born. Over the year's Kent has contributed to and produced many of the tech industry's groundbreaking events - Interop, InteropDotCom, Mactivity, Mactivity/Web, Mactivity/CEO, Voice on the Net (VON), ProgrammableWorld, Search, SOCKSDevCon, QuickTime Live!, The Mac Networkers Retreat and, of course, Macworld Conference & Expo. A respected leader in the Mac market, Kent has designed the renowned Macworld Conference programs since 1997.

RICH FEELEY

Rich Feeley, Vice President, Operations brings a diverse range of skills and nearly 20 years of experience in the event industry to IDG World Expo. Most recently, Feeley was Director of Building Services for the Massachusetts Convention Center Authority, which includes the new Boston Convention and Exhibition Center and the Hynes Convention Center. Feeley has also served as Director of Operations for major tradeshow such as COMDEX, Network + Interop and Java One, and has played key roles on several high-profile projects including the 1996 Summer Olympics, the 1994 and 2004 Super Bowls, the World War II Memorial Dedication in Washington D.C., and former President William Jefferson Clinton's Keynote address at COMDEX 2000. Feeley began his career in the meeting and incentives business where he developed and managed programs and sales meetings for companies including IBM and CA.

RICHARD KAZARIAN

Richard Kazarian, Vice President, Sales has over 18 years of tradeshow and conference experience. He spent 14 years at Key 3 Media (formally Ziff Davis Inc) where he worked on Comdex and Network + Interop and held roles of National Account Manager, National Sales Manager, Director of North American Sales and VP of Business Development. Prior to coming on board at IDG World Expo, Kazarian worked at Questex Media where he was Group Sales Director for their technology portfolio.

DONNA MOSCHELLA

Donna Moschella, Vice President, Finance & Administration, is responsible for IDG World Expo's finance/accounting, information technology, facilities planning/management, and legal affairs. Moschella joined IDG World Expo in 1998 as Finance Director and was appointed to Vice President Finance & Administration in 2002. Prior to joining IDG World

Expo, Moschella held various financial positions at International Data Group, the parent company of IDG World Expo. Moschella has over 20 years experience in the finance/accounting field.

LINSY REESE

Linsy Reese, Vice President, Marketing, is responsible for developing integrated marketing strategies for IDG World Expo's events, including Macworld, LinuxWorld and GreenXchange. With over 15 years of event experience, Reese spent seven years at CMP Media working on electronics industry events, including the Embedded Systems Conference. Previously, she spent eight years at the American Academy of Ophthalmology marketing their annual meeting, one of the top five largest medical meetings in the U.S.